Summer School on Ancient Greek and Roman Numismatics

June 27th - July 7th 2023, Athens, Greece

Pre-announcement

After a long pause, the Institute of Historical Research of the National Hellenic Research Foundation is pleased to announce the organisation of the fourth Summer School on Ancient Greek and Roman Numismatics, to take place at its premises in Athens, from June 27th to July 7th 2023.

The Summer School is addressed to undergraduate, postgraduate and PhD students in History, Archaeology and Art History, to historians and archaeologists, but also to individuals with a special interest in numismatics. It offers a series of courses on numismatics, history, methodology and various special themes and consists of lectures, practical sessions and visits to numismatic collections, museums and relevant archaeological sites in Attica.

The lecturers are researchers at the Institute of Historical Research of the National Hellenic Research Foundation, framed by other experts in numismatics. Each year a visiting scholar is invited to develop a special topic. Our visiting scholar for 2023 will be Thomas Faucher, Researcher at the Centre d'Études Alexandrines (UAR 3134 CNRS/Ifao).

The courses will be taught in English and will be offered to a limited number of applicants who will be selected by the Scientific Committee.

All participants will receive a certificate of participation.

The detailed programme of the Summer School, the application procedure and the participation fees and will be announced in February 2023 on the Summer School on Ancient Greek and Roman Numismatics website
